

Video Series & Awareness Campaign Project Report

Presented by

May 27, 2013

Introduction

Aftermath of Murder: Survivor Stories ("AOM") is a multi-part video series and awareness campaign created and executed by Shaky Egg Communications for the BC Victims of Homicide and their parent organization the BC Bereavement Helpline

- The Project was produced in support of the Department of Justice's National Victims of Crime Week ("NVCW"), April 21-27, 2013.
- The Department of Justice provided partial funding for the Project in the total amount of $10,000 and through in-kind donations by Shaky Egg and other partners the total project executed is valued near $60,000.

What is the BCVOH?

• BC Victims of Homicide is a non-profit group that specializes in providing peer support groups for people who are survivors of homicide (those who have lost loved ones to murder).

Problem:

- From the perspective of the homicide survivor, murder is poorly covered in the news creating myriad of emotional challenges.
- Coverage mostly focuses on the grisly details of the murder itself, the perpetrator and the court trial. Rarely does a true picture of the victim emerge and never a comprehensive understanding of the emotional impact on the survivors of murder.
- Coverage routinely causes great harm to survivors of murder through inaccurate facts, poorly chosen headlines, continuous display of crime scene images and offender photos.

Challenge:

- Build an awareness campaign anchored by a video series which increases the general publics understanding of homicide loss through the exploration of the emotional impact experienced by survivors.
- Provide the general public an inside look at the loss, grief, trauma and hope for healing in the aftermath of murder.
- Provide survivors a safe venue in which to control the telling of their story and that of the victim.
- Engage mainstream media to earn coverage controlled by BCVOH.
- Increase the awareness of the BC Victims of Homicide and drive the acquisition of new social media connections
- Reach homicide survivors who were unaware of homicide support
- Create legacy materials to be used in homicide support training and by survivors in peer-support groups

Actionable Insights:

- Creating professional broadcast quality, in-depth, long-form video interviews, conducted in an authoritative and intimate style, will allow the sharing of more complete stories of the myriad of survivor experiences
- Including homicide survivors from high profile murders and titling the series with sensational news values in mind would pique interest from the general public and the mainstream media.
- Securing media partnership for distribution of AOM content is possible by: (a) arguing that for too long the mainstream news media has profited from the grisly details of murder and this is an opportunity to give back; (b) providing compelling ready-to-air content at no cost
- By following the insights above the AOM Project could achieve what many survivors lacked during their experiences with the mainstream media; control over their story

What is AOM?

Aftermath of Murder: Survivor Stories, is a multi-part video series featuring exclusive interviews with ordinary people who have experienced an extraordinary event, the devastating loss of a loved-one through murder.

For most of us our only experience with murder is vicarious, through fictional stories in film & television and via the real-life sensational details covered in the news. We are captivated by the grisly details of murder, the who-dunit and the court trial. Rarely do we get a full picture of the victim and almost never any true understanding of the terrible emotional impact on the survivors of murder.

This series goes "behind the headlines" as survivors share their stories about the loss, grief, trauma and hope for healing in the aftermath of slide)

Primary Partners:

The following provided critical support for this project including: support letters, in-kind production, consultation, marketing, public relations, event hosting, media coverage and AOM content distribution.

- RCMP Integrated Homicide Investigative Team (IHIT) Sgt. Jennifer Pound (Media Relations Officer)
- Centre for Restorative Justice at the School of Criminology, Simon Fraser University – Dr. Brenda Morrison (Director)
- Simon Fraser University Public Relations Carol Thorbes (Information Officer)
- Shaky Egg Communications Brent Stafford (CEO)
- The Province Newspaper (Pacific Press) Erik Rolfsen (Online News Editor)

Project Elements

Created & Executed:

- Videos: 7x broadcast quality videos (80mins total)
- Daily Release: one video released each day of the NVCW
- Website: 12 pages with facebook plugins
- Screening Event: 55 attendees (April 25, 2013)
- Project Collateral: poster, invite flyer, postcard, event handout
- Press Materials: press release, media contact, pictures & video
- Email Marketing: 4 drops + group sends (4,000 contacts).
- Social Media: individual posts for each video release, all media coverage and production photos. Posts were on the BCVOH facebook fan page, Shaky Egg pages and SFU pages. Posts to RCMP IHIT twitter account @homicideteam with over 6,000 followers.
- DVD: mastered & duplicated for training and reporting

Overview:

- The AOM videos were a complete success. Every participant had the opportunity to review and approve the videos before release. Every video was approved with no changes. All reported back that the experience was very worthwhile and they were pleased to be a part of the project.
- In the videos we were able to take a deep-dive into very delicate issues around the murder of their loved ones, their reactions and emotions, their feelings about the police and court process and the media coverage.
- Importantly, we had an in-depth discussion about the process of coping with grief, their experience with support services and their position on if and how one can heal from such a devastating loss.
- AOM videos were and still are available to view on the AOM Project Website. Go to www.BCVOH.com for access.

By sharing and listening to others who have experienced this unique event. survivors are able to have their feelings validated. There is help and hope out there. If you or someone you know has experienced a loss through homicide, go to the BC Victims of Homicide website at BCVOH.com to find available resources and information on upcoming support groups.

Helping the People of BC Cope with Grief

The BC Bereavement Helpline (BCBH) is a leader in providing education, support and advocacy for the bereaved in BC., Since 1986, the Helpline has assisted over 35,000 callers providing immediate telephone support, information and referrals to over 300 groups in 76 communities. The BC Bereavement Helpline is a nonprofit, free, and confidential service that assists the bereaved and their caregivers in coping and managing grief.

Grief is highly complex, but an absolutely normal reaction to a death. It affects each person differently. As their relationship was unique with the person who passed away, so too will be the way in which they grieve. Because grief is something that is so personal, it cannot be avoided by ignoring it or by frenetic activity. The grieving process must occur as there is no way around it; grieving is nature's way of healing.

Series Producer & Host - Brent Stafford

This series and website was produced by Brent Stafford, CEO of Shaky Egg Communications. Stafford is a 25-year veteran television news & documentar producer who got his start at a CBC-affiliate in Kelowna, B.C. During his career, he's covered numerous stories of crime & violence, that had a dramatic effect on victims, their families and the local community. From the Mindy Tran murder and the native residential school abuse scandals in the mid 1990's to the Columbine Massacre and most recently the mass shooting at the Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown Connecticut.

During his graduate work in the MA program in the School of Communication at Simon Fraser University, he developed an holistic approach to understanding these tragic events and analyzed the news media successes and failures in covering them. Too often, those in the media profit from tragic stories. So when asked by the BC Victims of Homicide to partner with them on this project, Stafford immediately saw an opportunity to give back. His company donated in-kind nearly seventy-five percent of the cost and is thrilled survivors of homicide are able to tell their stories on their own terms.
